KUDOS FOR GALLEGHER

Many thanks for your broadcast of the "Gallegher" series as originally shown. It was a real treat for those of us who remember the original 1965 series. I also do hope that if you rebroadcast "Willie and the Yank," that you use the original-length TV version. The music, orchestration, and credits add greatly to watching these gems.

HOW BATS FLY

I would like to point out an error in your "The Living Desert" crossword puzzle ("The Disney Channel Magazine," Aug. 3-Sept. 13, 1986, p. 20). The clue to "9 Across" stated: "Bats use this for directions." The answer on page 24 incorrectly stated that bats use radar for directions. The correct answer should have been sonar. Radar implies "radio amplification" (light), whereas sonar applies to ultrasound (sound pitched above human hearing) transmission—which bats use. Thank you.

A KID AGAIN

My husband and I recently subscribed to The Disney Channel. After having had the service for three months, we regretted not having subscribed sooner. Our son Davie loves your morning programming, especially "Good Morning, Mickey!" and "You and Me, Kid."

My husband and I love your evening programs and old mini-series like "The Swamp Fox." The first time my husband watched "Zorro," he became just like a little kid. He recently made a Zorro cape and hat for our little boy! Thank you for hours of fine entertainment for adults and children!

LOOKING-GLASS STORY

The "Looking-Glass" comic that you printed in "Just For Kids" (the Aug. 3-Sept. 13 issue of "The Disney Channel Magazine") was a real treat. My seven and nine year olds loved holding the story up to the mirror and being able to read the print. It was also a big hit with neighbor kids who don't get The Disney Channel. Best of all, my children learned about mirrors and how they work.

A Burbank sound stage fills in for the London locale of "Mary Poppins."

Where was "Mary Poppins" filmed?

— J.D., Mt. Vernon, IA

"Mary Poppins", even though set in London, was filmed on sound stages at the Disney Studio in Burbank, CA. In order to control the elements, even the outdoor street scenes were constructed on the sound stages.

Was Figaro in "Pinocchio" the first cat in a major role in a Disney film?

— R.M., Sun Valley, CA

Actually there were two earlier cats who had fairly major roles. In Walt Disney's early silent Alice Comedies, the co-star with Alice was an animated cat named Julius. The other cat was the villain, Peg Leg Pete, who, though a nemesis of Mickey Mouse, had originally made his debut in one of the Alice Comedies a few years before Mickey's debut.

Didn't Mickey Mouse appear in MGM's "The Hollywood Party" in 1934, and wouldn't that have been his first color appearance rather than in "The Band Concert" (1935)?

— J.W., Westwood, NJ

While there is a color Disney cartoon — "The Hot Chocolate Soldier" — in the middle of MGM's black-and-white feature, Mickey Mouse is not in the color segment. He appears in black and white with Jimmy Durante in a segment introducing the cartoon.

Why are different boys' voices used as the voice of Christopher Robin in "The Many Adventures of Winnie the Pooh"?

— D.P., Key West, FL

The Disney Winnie the Pooh films were made over a period of many years, from 1966 to 1974. Boys' voices change, so it was not possible to continue using the same voice for each film. The three Pooh featurettes were not originally meant to be seen at the same time.

Did Walt Disney travel to all of the areas where the True-Life Adventures were filmed?

— C.F., Natick, MA

Walt Disney relied on individual nature photographers to provide him with the film footage he needed for the True-Life Adventures. While Walt did not travel to the sites himself, he was very interested in personally screening all of the film footage that the photographers sent back.

Disney Channel Trivia

- Richard Fleischer, who directed "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (check the listings for air dates), was the son of an early competitor of Walt Disney's. His famous father was Max Fleischer, who created the "Out Of The Inkwell," "Betty Boop," and "Popeye The Sailor" cartoons and the animated feature, "Gulliver's Travels."

Walt's competitor Max Fleischer's son Richard directed "20,000 Leagues."

- When Walt Disney opened Disneyland in 1955, he had a difficult time getting all the attractions ready for opening day. He had special problems with Tomorrowland, so to fill some empty space in one building, he set up the sets of the interior of the Nautilus from "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea." Guests loved the opportunity to tour Captain Nemo's ship and the "temporary" exhibit remained at Disneyland entertaining visitors for 11 years.
- "Lady and The Tramp" was the first Disney animated feature which was extensively promoted prior to its release on Walt's new television series. The promo shows were excellent entertainment in their own right — witness "A Story of Dogs" on The Disney Channel's "The Best of Walt Disney Presents" on November 20. "Lady and The Tramp" will be reissued in the theaters this Christmas.

MARY POPPINS

Walt Disney's Musical Masterpiece Sparkles With Academy Award-Winning Special Effects

Film is the art of illusion, a technical slight of hand that transports audiences from darkened theaters to another time or place. In "Mary Poppins," which airs beginning November 22 at 6:30 p.m. on The Disney Channel, subscribers can witness one of the pinnacles of such movie magic. "Mary Poppins" is a film which, like Mary Poppins herself, is so "practically perfect" it garnered 13 Academy Award nominations and won five Oscars.

Even today, when computer-generated special effects are commonplace, "Mary Poppins" remains a landmark in film history. Its stunning special effects and animation so perfectly match the charming story that viewers cease to recognize animation or live-action or special effects: they're simply watching movie magic.

Nowhere is that more clearly demonstrated than in the startling Jolly Holiday sequence. In the film, Mary Poppins (Julie Andrews in her Academy Award-winning role) takes her two young charges on a stroll to the park. There they meet the irrepressible Bert (Dick Van Dyke), who at the moment is a sidewalk artist. In a flash the four step through his chalk-drawn picture on the pavement and are off for a frolic through the glories of the English countryside. In one fell swoop reality vanishes as Mary Poppins, Bert and the children cavort and sing and dance with a variety of stunning animated characters.

In the sequence's most breath-taking moment, the group goes for a ride on a carousel—and the horses break free from the merry-go-round to race gaily over hill and dale, even taking part in a fox hunt. At the end of this exquisite fantasy, cartoon rains wash the chalk-drawn picture away, leaving the happy four back in the London park. The sequence's power and beauty lies in its dramatic unity. It is little wonder that one of the five "Mary Poppins" Oscars was for "Best Visual Effects."

Of course, creating such then-state of the art effects was a Herculean task, as Julie Andrews well remembers.

"It was the 'Spoonful of Sugar' number," Andrews recalls. "Walt visualized the scene. He wanted a robin to perch on my finger and chirp while I sang. So he had them make an Audio-Animatronics bird.

"There were yards of control wires which I had to wear under my costume and down my sleeve. By the time I was rigged up, with the robin taped to my hand, I was carrying more circuitry than an Apple II. And then, while a crew animated the bird, I had to sing to a playback synchronized for twitters."

The success of "Mary Poppins" can't just be laid to the film's special effects. Julie Andrews' and Dick Van Dyke's performances are tours de force. The music of the Sherman Brothers (it was the first musical feature film score they'd written) ranges from exuberant music-hall ditties to the haunting ballad "Chim Chim Cher-ee." "Mary Poppins" is that rare movie where every element is in harmony.

Of course, every film has its detractors. In this case it was Mrs. P. L. Travers, the author of the "Mary Poppins" stories.

"How on earth could you let that Dick Van Dyke play a cockney?" she demanded of Walt Disney after the world premiere of "Mary Poppins." "And I just hate that dance number with those ghastly cartoon figures. You have to cut them out, Mr. Disney. When do we start editing?"

Walt knew "Mary Poppins" was a smash hit. "Wait until you've seen it again and read the notices," he calmly told Mrs. Travers. "You'll just love it."

And she did. ♥

DOWN THE LONG HILLS

Louis L'Amour's Epic
Western Adventure
Comes to TV as a
Disney Channel Premiere Film

Set against the soaring and savage splendors of the rugged American West, "Down the Long Hills" is novelist Louis L'Amour's story of the struggle to survive in a hostile wilderness. This magnificent tale, which has entertained over 2 million enthusiastic readers, now comes to television as a Disney Channel Premiere Film presentation. Beginning November 15 at 7:00 p.m., subscribers can relive those adventuresome times on the wild frontier.

Filmed on location in and around Utah's mile-high Heber Valley, "Down the Long Hills" recalls the scope and beauty of such classic Westerns as the masterpieces of John Ford and Howard Hawks. The film was directed by veteran Burt Kennedy ("Support Your Local Sheriff!"), who from the beginning of the project strived to capture the panoramic vistas of L'Amour's novel.

"Down the Long Hills" is a 'big sky' Western," Kennedy explains. "It's not about cowtowns. It's vast open spaces, not a smoky saloon. And we photographed it that way." The result is a made-for-TV movie whose unparalleled scenic beauty is a perfect match for an action-packed plot.

"Down the Long Hills" opens on an idyllic note: a wagon train is encamped in a peaceful meadow. Traveling with the troupe is young Hardy Collins (portrayed by Thomas Wilson Brown), who is on his way to Fort Bridger to meet his father Scott (Bruce Boxleitner), a horse and mule breaker for the Army. Hardy's companions are the Powells, whose young daughter Betty Sue (five-year-old Lisa MacFarlane in her screen debut) has become Hardy's shadow. Also accompanying the group is Big Red, the magnificent sorrel stallion that only Hardy and his father can handle.

But this quiet interlude is soon shattered by two mysterious cowboys who trade some horses for provisions. Later that evening, the stage is set for tragedy when a war party of fierce Comanche Indians, in pursuit of their stolen horses, descends on the wagon train. Only Hardy, Betty Sue, and Big Red survive the bloody massacre, leaving them to make it on their own to Ft. Bridger. Pitted against them are the marauding Comanche, the two murderous horse-thieving cowboys, and the very wilderness itself.

It's the beginning of a grand—and dangerous—adventure. As the two children struggle to survive, Hardy's father Scott and his mountainman friend Squires (Jack Elam) set off in a desperate search to find the children before disaster strikes.

Boxleitner, who is currently starring in the CBS series "Scarecrow and Mrs. King," has long been a fan of classic Hollywood Westerns. Subscribers may remember him from the series "How the West Was Won," which marked his first major role.

Elam, who accompanies Boxleitner in his odyssey across the rugged frontier, is a veteran character actor. Originally an accountant for a major Hollywood studio, Elam turned to acting in the late 1950s, becoming one of Hollywood's favorite performers. As Squires, Scott Hardy's friend, Elam creates a convincing portrait of a crusty mountainman who is so old he can't remember his age.

"That old pro Jack Elam came through as always, despite being plagued by a bad back," Director Kennedy recalls. "But Jack made me pay my dues—in the poker games he organized every Saturday night."

Of course, trying to capture L'Amour's epic tale and the beauty of Utah's mountain country can prove as great a trial for filmmakers as the ordeal experienced by the two children in the movie. On location the cast and crew braved late seasonal snow storms (necessary for the shoot) and ram-paging floods. The terrain even dictated the manner of filming.

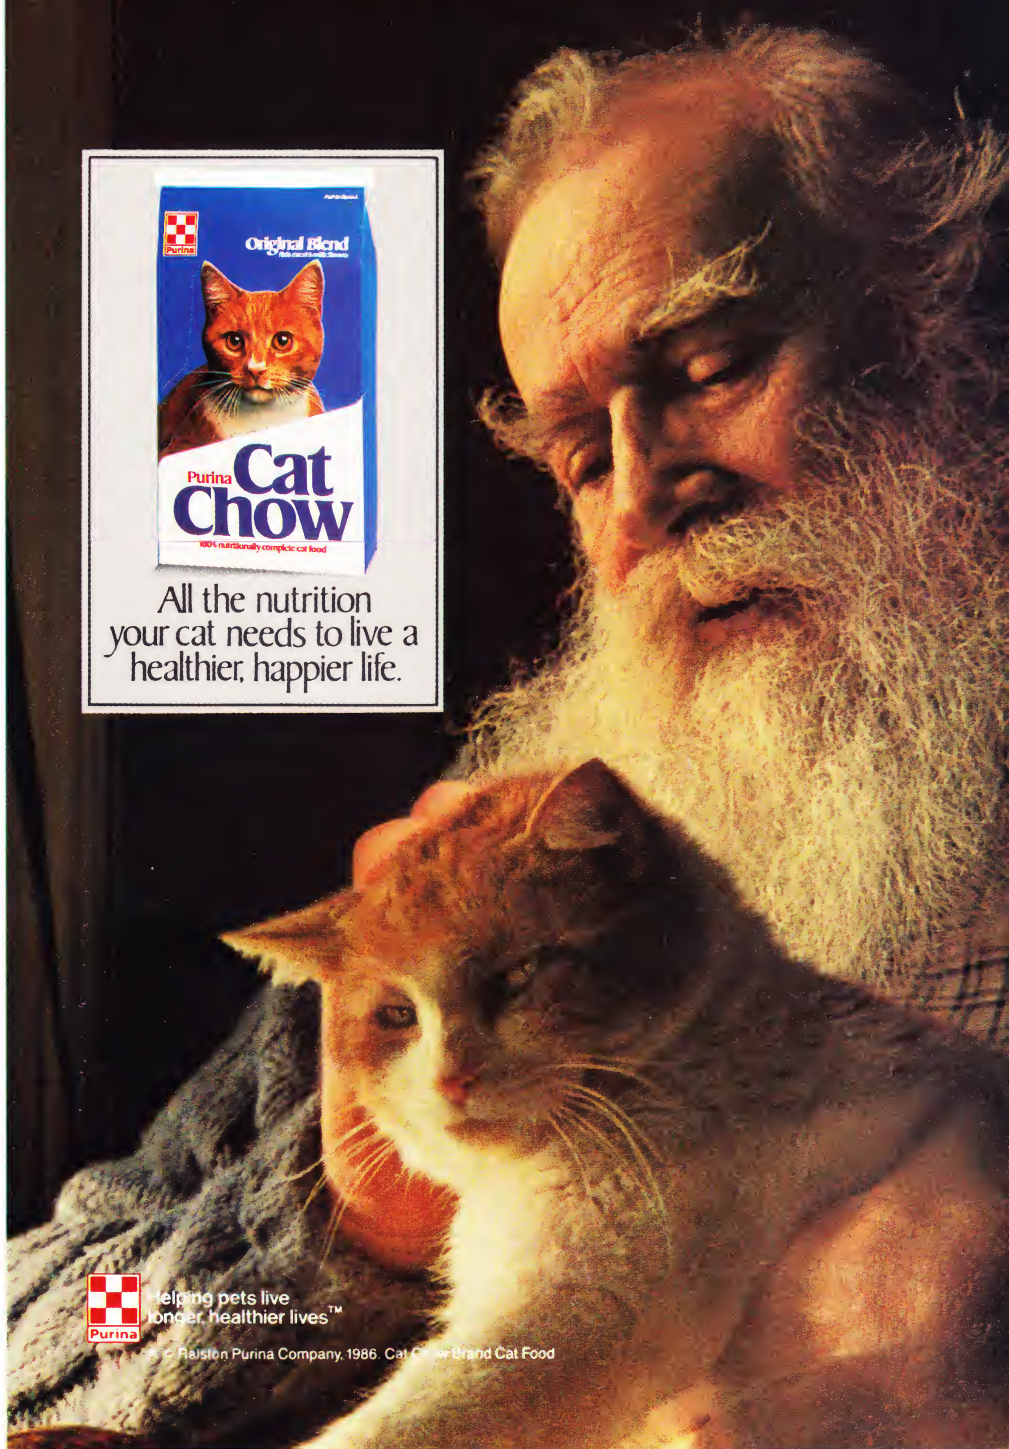

"We got our long shots either before 10:00 a.m. or after 4:30 p.m.," observes cinematographer Reed Smoot. "You have to do that in that part of the country. Otherwise the bright sun flattens the images. The trick is to shoot quickly to take advantage of the light at certain times."

With its magnificent scenery and its stirring tale of adventure and survival, "Down the Long Hills" is reminiscent of the masterful Westerns of Hollywood's golden age. Louis L'Amour's vision of the West, a vision inspired by his familiarity with the history of America's Western experience, is captured in all its glory. Now subscribers can relive those far-off days with this thrilling Disney Channel Premiere Film. 🐾

THE FANTASY FILM WORLDS OF GEORGE PAL

In the annals of Hollywood, George Pal will always be remembered as a titan, a brilliant visionary who profoundly shaped the art of motion pictures. As an animator, Pal was a pioneer of stop-action animation and a peer of Walt Disney and Walter Lantz. In the '50s, as a producer and director of live-action films, he brought to the screen such classics as H.G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" and "The Time Machine." Pal's cinematic legacy can be traced today in the works of George Lucas, Steven Spielberg, and Gene Roddenberry.

Now subscribers of The Disney Channel can take an in-depth look at the career and achievements of this remarkable man with the exclusive world television premiere of "The Fantasy Film Worlds of George Pal" on Saturday, November 1 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time). This 90-minute documentary, which chronicles the early years of the late Pal's life and focuses on the zenith of his career, is the centerpiece of The Disney Channel's Fantasy Film Festival. Included in "The Fantasy Film Worlds of George Pal" are clips from Pal's films and Puppetoon shorts, interviews with Pal (who died in 1980), and reminiscences from the likes of Charlton Heston, Janet Leigh, Tony Curtis, writer Ray Bradbury, and Gene Roddenberry, the creator of "Star Trek."

Produced, directed, and written by Arnold Leibovit, "The Fantasy Film Worlds of George Pal" received the 1986 Golden Eagle Award from CINE, the Council for International Non-Theatrical Events. An even greater honor was bestowed upon the film this past August, when it was selected by the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences as the centerpiece of its fifth annual George Pal Lecture on Fantasy in Film. The lecture series was established by the Academy to commemorate George Pal's contribution to the arts and sciences of motion pictures.

This superb documentary begins with Pal's birth into a Hungarian theatrical family. Despising the stage, Pal's interest quickly turned to film and animation. But the rising tide of Nazi Germany pushed Pal to move to Holland, where he created his revolutionary short, "Ship of the Ether." As World War II loomed on the horizon, Pal realized an old dream and headed to the U.S. for Hollywood.

It was there that Pal was to profoundly influence the movie industry and shape the imaginations of a later generation of filmmakers. Working at Paramount, Pal applied his experience in animation to create a beautiful series of musical short subjects. "George Pal's Puppetoons" utilized meticulously carved wooden puppets and stop-action photography to create three-dimensional animation the likes of which had never been seen before. Puppets gracefully twirl and swoop in a ballroom to the strains of a Strauss waltz. The Puppetoons earned Pal an Academy Award—the first of five in his career.

In the '50s Pal turned to live-action films as a producer (as did his friend Walt Disney). It was in this decade that Pal's work was to reach its mature power. His first film, "Destination Moon," was a "futuristic documentary" chronicling man's exploration of Earth's nearest neighbor.

As veteran director Robert Wise observes in the documentary, "'Destination Moon' was a major turning point in film history."

Pal turned out hit after hit in this productive decade. "Destination Moon" was followed by the frightening vision of "War of the Worlds" and "The Time Machine." But there was a warm and gentle side to this artist as well. Today Pal is also honored for the beautiful and charming fantasies "Tom Thumb," "The Brothers Grimm," and "The Seven Faces of Dr. Lao."

It is this period that provides the scope of "The Fantasy Film Worlds of George Pal." The documentary gains depth through the portrait of a sensitive artist—a picture of a man whose creative talents never ran roughshod over his humanity. This stunning documentary, with its star reminiscences and lavish film clips, is a mosaic that adds up to a moving portrait of a creative genius. ♡

KidScene

Is The Only Place To Be

idScene has it all: The rhythm and beat of today's top tunes; the drama that surrounds the events of kids' lives; and the good times and fun that kids want. KidScene lights up every weekday afternoon from 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time), and each afternoon's program is a different mix of high-energy music, comedy, true-to-life scenes, and dramas that deal with issues important to kids.

Important to KidScene is "Kids Incorporated," five dazzling performers who've put together a rock band. They'll be on KidScene every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5:00, singing popular songs kids want to hear, with backup dancers adding all the glitter kids want to see.

Between songs, however, we get a glimpse of what it's like to work together for the band's success. We see the highs and the lows for the band and for each of the kids.

When Stacy Ferguson, the group's youngest member, was interviewed by The Disney Channel Magazine (see "KidScene Close-up" in the "Just for Kids" section) she talked about the stories in "Kids Incorporated." "I think the stories are neat," she enthused. "Maybe a real kid has had the same problem and it would help him to solve it."

"The Kids of DeGrassi Street," (on KidScene at 5:30 on Wednesdays), are different from "Kids Incorporated." The DeGrassi Street kids aren't actors but kids who live in a real neighborhood. Their stories are the stories of all kids. We see them at school, doing after-school jobs, and living with brothers and sisters—sometimes easily, sometimes not. They experience the ups and downs that kids do everywhere: fear when they're unprepared for a test at school; conflict over cheating; loneliness when rejected by classmates; happiness in finding a true friend.

KidScene also includes prize-winning specials of all sorts, some of them dealing with upsetting situations. "Grandma Didn't Wave Back," (November 7 at 5:30) is a touching story of the love between 11-year-old Debbie and her grandmother. Debbie becomes angry and disturbed when her parents decide that Grandma needs the round-the-clock care of a nursing home. But when Debbie visits her there, she learns the truth of Grandma's words: "We dance to the music of our own time."

"The Exchange Student" (November 4 at 5:00) is about the tempestuous relationship between an American girl, Julie, and Moneka, a student from India who comes to stay with Julie's family for the year. Moneka wears a sari to school and feels awkward. Julie complains to her mom that Moneka is a snob. Conflicts abound as East meets West for the first time.

Conflict within a family is the subject of "The Almost Royal Family" (November 11 at 5:00). Sarah Jessica Parker, who was in the movie "Footloose," plays Suzanne Henderson, a New York City teenager who is obsessed with Princess Diana and the Royal Family. When Suzanne's family moves to a deserted island off Canada, she rebels. Later, in an odd turn of events, she becomes royalty herself—almost.

Animated music videos, "DTV's," add a Disney beat to KidScene. And for a touch of truly zany humor, we'll be adding an animated talk show in the months ahead, "Telecat." Along with ostrich co-host Lola, the suave Telecat brings us news-breaking reports of such wacky events as Pickle Day and Pocket Calculator Day in this series of shorts.

KidScene is full of life—drama and comedy, the pain of growing up, the excitement of growing up, and best of all, the music of today's kids. It all happens every weekday afternoon at KidScene only on The Disney Channel.

KidScene includes dramas, such as "The Almost Royal Family," in which the Hendersons (above) inherit an entire island and move there. KidScene also brings you the rock band "Kids Incorporated" (left), Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 5:00 p.m.

During the Sixties, The Lovin' Spoonful was one of the top rock bands around. But that was 20 years ago. As the Sixties became history, so did The Lovin' Spoonful. "It ran its course," says John Sebastian, a founder of the band. Most of the other players went into other fields.

"But I was in music for a lifetime," Sebastian says. Since the band's breakup in '68, he has been on his own. Today he is a singer, songwriter, arranger, accompanist, film-scorer, entertainer—and dad. Lovin' Spoonful fans from the Sixties are now parents who bring children of their own to John Sebastian concerts.

This fall John Sebastian and The Disney Channel have joined forces to bring viewers the sort of upbeat family-style concerts for which he's now known. Early in October, parents and children sang along with Sebastian at the Disney Channel live "Music was tremendously alluring at the time The Spoonful began in 1965. Many people got into music who weren't comfortable in it for the long run. As time went on, I felt that my career was in music for a lifetime. Other members weren't so strongly motivated, so we finally disbanded.

"During the Seventies I found it very exciting to be on my own, and to work with old friends I'd known before The Spoonful. Many of them had become well known, or well established studio musicians—people such as Dallas Taylor and Stephen Stills. All of the members of Crosby, Stills and Nash helped in one way or another—singing on some of my records or playing a little guitar here and there."

Audiences still love the Spoonful songs. Parents and kids sing along to "Nashville Cats," "Summer in the City," "Do You Believe in Magic?" and, of course, "What a Day

What a Day For a Daydream

A John Sebastian Musical Special

John Sebastian's commitment to a musical career and his dedication to his family have made the former '60s rocker a star performer in family concerts as well as the composer of such film scores as "The Care Bears Movie."

concert in celebration of Walt Disney World's 15th Birthday. And on November 17 at 8:00 p.m. (EST/PST) Sebastian returns to The Disney Channel as the star of his own lively one-hour musical special, "What a Day For a Daydream."

Accompanying Sebastian is the rock group NRBQ (New Rhythm and Blues Quartet), who play the Spoonful favorites with just the right flavor, according to Sebastian. Also on hand for big sound and comic flair is San Francisco's celebrated Brass Band: highly talented musicians with a zany clown style, who made their debut on The Disney Channel's "New Vaudevillians" in September. But it's Sebastian's warm easy-going manner that warms kids' hearts—and parents' hearts, too.

Sebastian recently talked with The Disney Channel Magazine about the course of his musical career: About The Lovin' Spoonful and what he's done since then. He talked about his personal life, too, and his interest in children.

"The Spoonful was never a psychedelic group," Sebastian points out. "We just concentrated on writing popular tunes for AM radio, with no apologies. We weren't trying to make a political statement or create much of an atmosphere by the way we dressed or presented ourselves. The music was the core of the matter.

For a Daydream." Sebastian also sings his 1976 hit, "Welcome Back," the theme song from the TV series "Welcome Back Kotter," as well as his hit tunes from animated films for kids such as "The Care Bears Movie," and "Strawberry Shortcake's Housewarming Surprise."

"I've always been comfortable with children," Sebastian says. "I worked as a counselor in summer camps. My wife and I are raising two sons, a 14-year-old and a six-month-old, and our house is a kind of check-in spot for neighborhood kids. When our oldest son was in elementary school, I was a volunteer stagehand for classroom plays. I helped the kids build Copenhagen out of discarded refrigerator cartons for a show about Hans Christian Andersen.

"My professional life is somewhat irregular, compared to other fathers, in that I do not go away for the major portion of the day and return in the evening. When I'm gone, I'm gone for 24 hours. I play about a hundred concert dates a year. But when I'm home, I'm there for 24 hours. I think that has given me a leg up in the parenting process. I think it's healthy for a youngster to observe his parents at work, seeing how they earn their living. My oldest son sees me composing, playing the same 16 bars for an hour and a half, and then a few days later hears a song starting to materialize." 🐻

THE MAKING OF DISNEY'S

What goes into the making of a multi-million dollar, 3-D musical space-fantasy? You'll discover the answer to that question on November 18 at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) when you join hostess Whoopi Goldberg ("The Color Purple") for "The Making of Disney's Captain EO." It's a behind-the-scenes look at the revolutionary short film created through the collaborative efforts of George Lucas and Disney Imagineers. Directed by Francis Coppola, and starring Michael Jackson, Academy Award-winning actress Anjelica Huston, comedian Dick Shawn and a cast of lovable space characters, "Captain EO" is presented by the Eastman Kodak Company at Disneyland and Walt Disney World's EPCOT Center. "The Making of Disney's Captain EO" traces the project from its inception through set and costume design to rehearsals. You'll watch executive producer George Lucas, producer Rusty Lemorande, and director Francis Coppola, as they combine their talents to create the film event of the '80s. And there are interviews with the complete cast of "Captain EO." This exclusive special is an unprecedented look at Hollywood's leading lights as they create the ultimate film experience.

6:00 P.M. MOVIES

Television time should be quality family time, which is why The Disney Channel starts your evening with a fine family film such as "The Care Bears Movie" at 6:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) every week night.

THE EDISON TWINS

Tom and Annie Edison started college this fall, and there within the ivy-covered stone walls of Bayfield University lurk plenty of mysteries for our supersleuth twins to unravel. And they do, armed with scientific detective ability and perseverance, every Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. (EST/PST).

MINISERIES THE BLUE AND THE GRAY

This action-packed, star-studded drama is told through the eyes of a Southern artist covering the major battles of the Civil War for a Northern newspaper. The first two episodes will be shown together, followed by one-hour episodes (check listings for times). This miniseries, and others scheduled for the future, follow in the tradition of our immensely popular "Disney's Return to Treasure Island."

FIVE MILE CREEK

This highly-acclaimed series, continuing every Friday at 8:00 p.m. (EST/PST), chronicles the lives of two venturesome women who've set up a coach stop on the Australian frontier, and two men who run the coach line. The hostility at Five Mile Creek is the hub of activity for the gold-rushers of the 1860s.

ZORRO ▶
Guy Williams stars as the mysterious masked hero who fights tyranny and injustice in this ever-popular series, showing in its entirety on The Disney Channel, Fridays at 7:30 p.m. (EST/PST).

◀ DANGER BAY
"Doc" Roberts, curator of marine mammals in Vancouver, and his two children find themselves on animal rescue missions, wildlife preservation ventures, and sometimes in danger in the Pacific Northwest, Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m. (EST/PST).

▲ THE ADVENTURES OF OZZIE AND HARRIET

The Nelsons offer a comical, nostalgic look at family life in the '50s, weekdays on The Disney Channel. Check listings for times.

▶ THE BEST OF WALT DISNEY PRESENTS

The Disney Channel has selected the finest shows from "The Wonderful World of Disney," which ran for 29 years on network TV and won 65 awards. You'll see the best in animation and a variety of short subjects, with introductions by Walt on Thursdays at 8:00 p.m. (EST/PST).

▶ ANIMALS IN ACTION

A special animal series Sundays at 6:00 P.M. (EST/PST) from Survival Anglia—the winners of 40 major awards for their extraordinary wildlife photography. Each episode probes a unique trait or adaptation within the animal kingdom.

9:00 P.M. MOVIES ▶

Prime time continues on The Disney Channel at 9:00 P.M. (EST/PST) weekday evenings with the finest in drama, adventure and musical films. Unwind with a Disney classic like "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," a lively musical such as "Brigadoon" or a comic gem such as "The Life of Riley."

Goofy

Goofy is so very neat,
He has a super pair of feet.
Goofy is my favorite guy
He's so tall, he could touch the sky.
Some people may think he's not very bright,
But in my opinion, he's outta sight!

My fat cat always sleeps.
He runs in front of cars,
and lets the cars beep.
He always gets in fights,
But all he has to do
Is sit on them and bite.
He may weigh a lot of pounds,
But he surely won't go out of bounds
To catch a bird.
He bites through cardboard
With two inch teeth,
But you'll always know he'll never
Run out of sleep.
By the way, his name is Hoover,
(like the vacuum cleaner).

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MICKEY

On November 18, 1928, Mickey Mouse appeared as the star of the first sound cartoon, "Steamboat Willie." Since then he has been drawn countless times, in all sorts of costumes, but underneath he is still the same Mickey. This page has directions for drawing that famous smiling face.

Mickey was born in Walt Disney's imagination earlier in that year of 1928, when Walt was only 26 years old. Walt and his wife, Lillian, were on a train ride from New York to Los Angeles, and Walt was unhappy because in New York he had been unable to get the money he needed to continue with his cartoon character, Oswald the Rabbit.

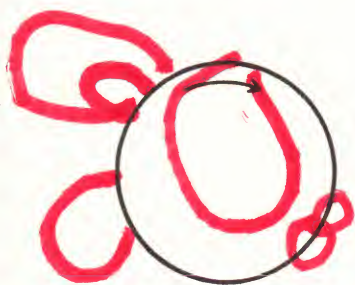

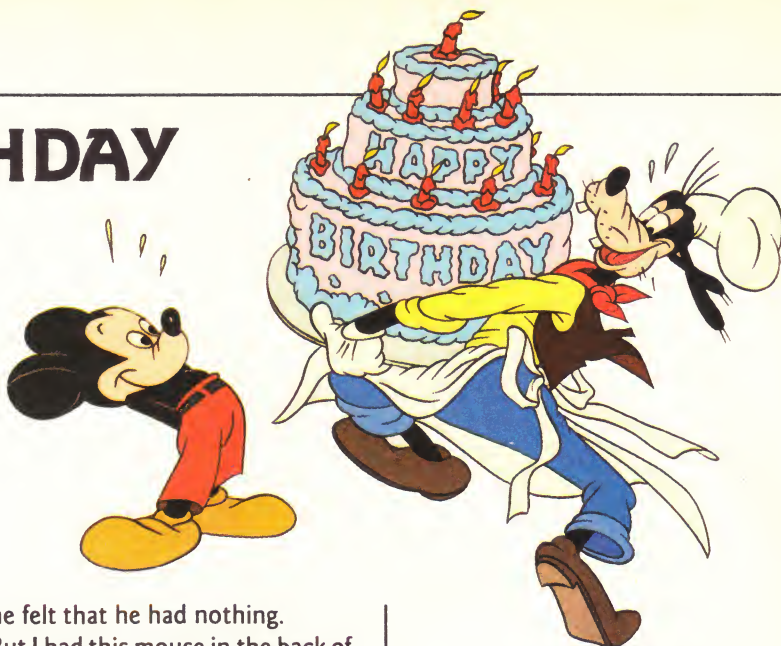

So he felt that he had nothing.

"But I had this mouse in the back of my head," Walt recalled later. And even though Walt admitted that he was just as frightened of mice as other people were, he thought that there was something likable about a mouse.

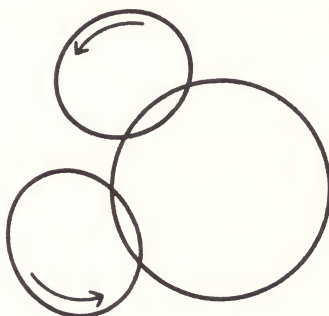

First he named the mouse Mortimer, but Walt's wife thought that the name was pompous. She named him Mickey.

Years later after Walt Disney had achieved great success, he once said, as he looked over all of Disneyland: "I hope we never lose sight of the fact... that this was all started by a Mouse."

1 Start with a circle for the head.

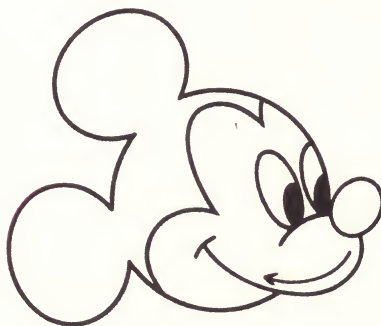

2 Draw two fat ovals for ears.

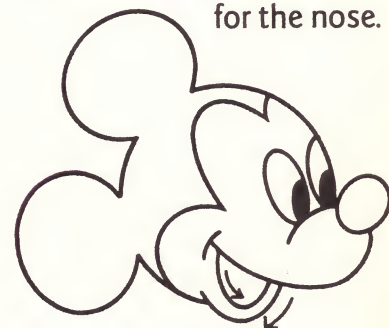

3 Draw another oval for Mickey's snout and another, smaller, egg-shaped circle for the nose.

4 Draw three large ovals to make Mickey's face. Add two ovals for eyes and two smaller ovals for pupils.

5 For Mickey's mouth, draw a line from underneath the snout and into the head circle. Erase unnecessary lines.

6 Draw a half oval from the corner of Mickey's mouth to a point about half way on his snout. Draw part of an oval directly under the first one.

HALLOWEEN IS GRINCH NIGHT

All the Whos of Who-ville shiver with fright, as the "sour sweet Grinch night wind" makes wild sounds on Halloween. But for the smallest who—little Ukariah—it's a night he'll never forget, in this Dr. Seuss special October 31, at 7:10 p.m. (EST/PST).

KIDSCENE

Come to "KidScene" every weekday afternoon at 5:00 p.m. (EST/PST) and join "Kids Incorporated," "The Kids of DeGrassi Street," and other kids, too. "Kids Incorporated" perform songs you want to hear, and all of the kids face the ups and downs of life.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MICKEY

November 18 is Mickey's birthday and on that day at 6:00 p.m. (EST/PST) we'll celebrate with this colorful salute to America's most beloved cartoon character. Share the finest moments of Mickey's life, and join in the fun with the rest of the Disney cartoon gang.

HALLOWEEN SAFETY

Goofy has done it right this year. He has planned ahead. You should plan ahead, too. Then your day will be fun-filled and trouble-free.

GET READY

1. Try on your costume a few days before Halloween. Make sure the pants or skirt aren't too long.
2. Make sure your costume is made of flame-resistant material.
3. Wear light colors so motorists can see you in the dark. Put reflective tape on your costume and trick-or-treat bag.
4. Make costume accessories, like swords or knives, out of cardboard.
5. Wear makeup instead of a mask, so you can see better. If you must wear a mask, make sure there are openings for the nose and mouth so you can breathe properly, and large holes for the eyes. Wear your mask on top of your head while you're walking and then pull it over your face as you ring a doorbell.
6. Don't carry candles or jack-o'-lanterns with flames.
7. Carry a flashlight and make sure it's in good working condition with charged batteries. You'll be able to see better, plus motorists can easily spot you.

GET SET

8. Get together with your friends before Halloween and plan your route. Never go alone. Choose streets that have sidewalks, if possible, and neighborhoods that you're familiar with. Tell your parents which route you'll be taking and who you're going with.

9. Have a nutritious snack or big supper before you leave, so you don't eat your treats before you come home. Carefully inspect everything you've received with an adult before you eat anything.

GO

10. Always walk on the sidewalks. If there are no sidewalks, travel facing the traffic. Go to all the houses on one side of the street first, and then cross at an intersection before you go to houses on the other side. Always look both ways before crossing. Never cross the street between parked cars since it's difficult for motorists to see you. They can see you better if you cross at the corner.

11. Never go into a house or an apartment while you're trick-or-treating.
12. Only go to houses or apartment buildings that are well lighted.
13. Try to go out during daylight hours. If you go out when it's dark, travel on well-lighted streets.

For your at-home Halloween entertainment, The Disney Channel presents a spooky and fun Fantasy Film Festival, starting at 6:00 p.m. (EST/PST) on Halloween night. The Fantasy Film Festival continues on Saturday evening, November 1. Check the "What's On" section for the list of programs and times.

Wear a watch and carry a flashlight.

Make sure your pants or skirt aren't so long that you'll trip on it.

Wear comfortable shoes.

Wear makeup instead of a mask.

Make costume accessories out of cardboard.

Carry change in case you need to call home.

Wear light colors or put reflective tape on your costume.

Find It In the Library

Four movies coming up on The Disney Channel are based on books—in fact, one movie is based on two different books! The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad features two of literature's most unforgettable characters. Ichabod is Ichabod Crane, the hero of Washington Irving's classic story "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." And Mr. Toad, of course, steps out of the pages of Kenneth Grahame's beloved novel "The Wind in the Willows."

And of course, Mary Poppins is based on a series of stories by P.L. Travers.

20,000 Leagues Under the Sea is adapted from Jules Verne's classic science fiction-adventure novel of the same title. Verne published his tale of a submarine powered by cosmic forces in 1870—84 years before the first atomic submarine was built.

Our Disney Channel Premiere Film, Down the Long Hills, is based on a book written by Louis L'Amour, the best-selling living American author. Advanced readers—and younger ones, too—will enjoy these works of fiction.

20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA

Color Captain Nemo, Ned Land, and the Deadly Giant Squid!

You know, Jules Verne (who wrote the book that this movie is based on) wasn't far wrong when he had a giant squid attack Captain Nemo and the Nautilus. Giant squid do exist. They live in the ocean depths. One giant squid's body measured 19 feet in length. His tentacles were even longer—29 feet! But giant squid attacking ships are a novelist's invention—and the stuff sailors' nightmares are made of.

Stacy Ferguson OF KIDS INCORPORATED

Stacy's favorites:

Her pet: "Sneaky," a cat

Favorite actor: Don Johnson

Favorite group and song: The Jets singing "Crush on You" (She also likes Whitney Houston and thinks Huey Lewis is cute.)

Favorite foods: crepes and lasagna

"Do you have fun working?"

"Do you like being on TV?"

These are the two questions Stacy Ferguson is most frequently asked in letters from fans.

In a recent Disney Channel interview with Stacy, she responded to both questions with a big "Yes, it is fun and I like it a lot."

"'Kids Incorporated' (which is now a part of 'KidScene') is hard work," she says. And at times we get into fights. It's just like going to school. But it's also fun. They're my good friends. And sometimes we go to Disneyland after work."

Stacy has a lot of fans. Thousands of letters come to "Kids Incorporated" each week addressed to the group, and about every two weeks a big box of letters for her is forwarded to her house. She gets even more mail around the time of her birthday, which is March 27.

And she gets lots of stickers. "When kids ask about hobbies, I tell them I like stickers," she says. "I get thousands. I like the unicorn stickers the best."

Stacy works hard. She has been one of the five principal members of "Kids Incorporated" since it began three years ago. During that time she has also done 14 television specials, more than 30 TV commercials, and made hundreds of personal appearances. And sometimes she has only been heard: she was the voice of Sally in several Charlie Brown specials.

Stacy describes herself as sort of a tomboy. She likes soccer, baseball and basketball. And during the summer she swam every day. In her free time at home, which she doesn't get much of, she mainly rides her skateboard or bike, or goes to the mall. She says: "I try to get away from show business as much as possible when I'm not working."

Does she have a best friend? "I have lots of best friends," she answers. "I like people with a sense of humor and that aren't snobby."

"I have two groups of friends, one in show business and one in school." Her school friends she has known since kindergarten so they don't treat her as a star. "But when I go to other schools I'm mobbed."

Stacy has big plans for the future. "I want to go on the radio. I want to be a singer and then do a couple of movies. I want to be one of those big rock stars and go on concert tours. It's a lot of work and you get all hot on stage, but it's fun and good experience." ♡

HARDWARE IS THE NUTS AND BOLTS OF HOME COMPUTERS

In our last magazine we talked briefly about computer hardware and software. Software are computer programs that tell your machine what to do. Hardware is the actual machine itself. To take a closer look at hardware, let's watch Mickey operate his computer.

Most home or micro computers (micro means small) have a keyboard—just like a typewriter. The keyboard allows Mickey to enter information into the computer in the form of numbers and letters. When Mickey uses the keyboard in this manner it's called inputting his information—or data as it's called.

After Mickey inputs his data, the computer "processes" it. This is done by a microprocessor. A microprocessor is made up of two parts. The control unit manages the computer—it's the boss. The control unit tells the arithmetic logic unit—whew!—how to process the data.

How is data processed? First, the computer is an electronic machine. So the microprocessor translates your data into electronic signals that the computer can understand and use. The microprocessor itself is a chip of silicon with tiny switches inside of it. The switches are like the light switches in your home. They have on-and-off patterns or signals. It's like sending a message in code. Imagine signaling a friend by rapidly flashing a lamp on and off. (Ships at sea still use lamps in this manner to signal one another.)

Once the information has been translated, the computer can use the data and even store it in its memory. There are two kinds of memory. Read Only Memory—ROM—is built right into the machine. The other kind of memory is Random Access Memory—RAM for short. RAM is data that the computer handles and remembers when it's in use. If Mickey were to turn off his computer, it would forget anything in its RAM—the data has been "erased" from its memory bank.

What happens after Mickey has inputted his information and the computer has processed it? He needs to get the information out of the computer. That's called output.

You may have noticed the TV set that's part of Mickey's computer. It's called a monitor. The computer takes the processed data out of the machine and puts it on the TV screen in a form Mickey can understand and use—or even change through inputting new data on his keyboard. Another output device is a printer. It's a miniature printing press that prints the computer data on paper.

That's the nuts and bolts of hardware. In our next magazine, we'll explore software—how programs run a computer. But first, let's take a look at some neat software available in stores.

WALT DISNEY CARD & PARTY SHOP:

Having a birthday, tea party or just in need of some nifty stationery? This software allows you to make invitations, cards, even your own note paper with your favorite Disney characters. It's designed for all ages—Mom and Dad will want to use it too.

MUPPET LEARNING KEYS™:

This is for the members of the family who are in pre-school to first grade. It has neat color graphics, and you can discover sound and letter combinations—even learn to count. And it has its own special keyboard, too!

MICKY'S SPACE ADVENTURE:

In this adventure game, you have to help Mickey and Pluto recover nine pieces of "memory crystal" scattered through the solar system. That means you have to explore the planets and moons. You even get to make inter-planetary maps. This software is for family members in the third through sixth grades. 🐻

20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA

The wizardry of Disney meets the magic of Jules Verne in this stunning adaptation of Verne's greatest work. In the year 1868 a sea monster is attacking and sinking merchant ships. Three men, a scientist, his assistant, and harpooner Ned Land (Kirk Douglas) join an expedition to hunt the creature down—only to be captured by Nemo, master of the “monster”—the submarine Nautilus.

THE RACCOONS

What was that!?! A knight in shining armor! What's he doing in the Evergreen Forest? And what about those rumors that a group of royalty is coming to settle an old score with that hard-hearted aardvark, Cyril Sneer? The forest is just full of wild "Rumours." But are they fact or are they fiction?

Nov. 25, 28, 30

FIVE MILE CREEK

Travel to another frontier every Friday night at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) with a new episode of "Five Mile Creek," the exciting "Western" series set in the Australian gold fields of the 19th century. It's the stirring story of two men and two women who brave the outback to seek their fortunes.

HERE'S BOOMER

He's a lovable little mutt, a vagabond pooch who, no matter whom he meets, always opts for a free and unfettered life. Each Monday evening at 8:30 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time) Boomer greets another cast of new characters and ends up changing their lives for the better. But in the end, the siren song of the open road calls Boomer back to his wandering ways, and he trots off on further adventures.

DISNEY CHANNEL PREMIERE FILM

DOWN THE LONG HILLS

A war party of Indians falls upon a wagon train in a bloody massacre. The only survivors are young Hardy Collins, traveling to Ft. Bridger to meet his father, his friend Betty Sue Powell, and the stallion Big Red.

As the two children struggle to survive, Hardy's father Scott (Bruce Boxleitner) sets out to rescue them. But pitted against the children are two horse thieves, the Indians, and the hostile terrain itself.

Nov. 15, 26, 30; Dec. 3, 5

LOCATION: DOWN THE LONG HILLS

Helpful snowfalls, untimely rain and rampaging floods, the beauty of Utah's mountains: the cast and crew of "Down the Long Hills" experienced it all when they went on location.

Nov. 8, 12, 14, 15, 26; Dec. 3, 5

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MICKEY

Mickey Mouse will be 58 on November 18. On that date in 1928 Mickey's first sound cartoon "Steamboat Willie" was released. "Happy Birthday Mickey" is a colorful salute to Mickey's finest moments.

Nov. 18, 29; Dec. 3

NATIONAL SNEAK-A-PEEK WEEK

From November 17 to November 23, The Disney Channel is available to people interested in becoming subscribers. The Disney Channel's continuing growth enables us to improve the quantity and quality of our programs. For a sampling of what's been available to you, we've selected a few programs for limited showings. The all-time Hayley Mills favorite "Parent Trap," and Bob Hope Theatre's "Paris Holiday" are two. The popular Garrison Keillor special, "Lake Wobegon Comes to Disney" is another. And as a preview of what's to come for current as well as future subscribers, we've included a sneak peek: the premiere of the newly colorized version of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," part of The Shirley Temple Theatre, which starts this winter.

THE BEAUTIFUL BLONDE FROM BASHFUL BEND

This delightful Preston Sturges comedy stars Betty Grable as a fast talkin', straight shootin' good ole gal who takes aim at co-star Cesar Romero and discovers romance, true love, and happiness out in the Wild West. Nov. 18, 23; Dec. 1, 3

MARY POPPINS

Julie Andrews won an Oscar for her performance as Mary Poppins, the "practically perfect" nanny who, with her friend Bert (Dick Van Dyke), brings love and happiness to the Banks family. Set in London circa 1910, "Mary Poppins" is a musical masterpiece that blends live action, animation, and an enchanting score into a film experience the whole family will enjoy. Nov. 22, 25, 27; Dec. 3

THE EDISON TWINS

Now that Tom and Annie Edison attend Bayfield University, life on campus offers them even more opportunities for scientific solutions to mystifying puzzles. A new mystery confronts the twins every Wednesday night at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

THE RED SHOES

Perhaps the finest film made about ballet, "The Red Shoes" is the tale of a ballerina torn between her love for a composer and her ambition as a dancer. Nov. 25, 29

Disney Channel DISCOVERY

THE DOG WHO STOPPED THE WAR

One Christmas vacation the children in a small Canadian town spend their time playing one of man's oldest "games": war. They divide into two groups and soon discover that their "battles" lead to unbearable tensions between them all—until, Cleo, a St. Bernard, puts an end to the war in this prize-winning French Canadian film. Nov. 29; Dec. 4

DANGER BAY

Join Grant "Doc" Roberts, curator of marine mammals at the Vancouver Aquarium, and his kids Jonah and Nicole for action and adventure in the Pacific Northwest. Along with their friend, the beautiful pilot J. L. Duval, they embark on adventure every Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

BRIGADOON

Adapted from Lerner and Lowe's haunting Broadway musical, "Brigadoon" is a romantic tale of love and loss. Two Americans (Gene Kelly and Van Johnson) discover a beautiful town in the Scottish highlands—a town that only lives for one day in a century. Dancer Cyd Charisse is the Scots girl who falls for Kelly in this superb musical directed by the late Vincente Minelli. Nov. 23, 27, 29

THIS WEEK

PIRATES OF TORTUGA

Set in the days when bold buccaneers sailed the Spanish Main (today's Caribbean), this swashbuckler features derring-do, espionage, and, of course, romance. When the British government grows tired of Harry Morgan's piratical ventures at sea, it recruits a young sailor to infiltrate Morgan's blood-thirsty crew and put an end to his operations—but not before swordplay at sea. Nov. 16, 29; Dec. 2

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK

This animated musical from the Prince Street Players retells the classic fairy tale of the boy who traded his mother's cow for a handful of magic beans. Told in a modern manner, the giant's an inventor and a nice guy! Nov. 24, 27; Dec. 6

CHALLENGE TO BE FREE

Former professional wrestler (and veteran character actor) Mike Mazurski portrays a gentle fur trapper who feels more comfortable with wild animals than people. But when the trapper accidentally kills a lawman, he must rely on his wits—and his knowledge of the wilderness—to elude a posse through 1,000 miles of Alaskan back-country. Nov. 11, 16, 26, 28; Dec. 4, 6

WEEKLY SERIES

Disney BEAT

Two stars from The Disney Channel Premiere Film "Down the Long Hills" are currently appearing on TV series. Bruce Boxleitner, the film's leading man, continues his role as the "Scarecrow" of "Scarecrow and Mrs. King." Jack Elam, the crusty old mountain man Squires in "Down the Long Hills," is the co-star of "Easy Street," the new NBC series. Elam portrays an old hobo who comes to live in co-star Loni Anderson's Beverly Hills mansion.

Louis L'Amour, the best-selling living American novelist and the author of "Down the Long Hills," is currently at work on his 96th book. Today L'Amour's favorite retreat for writing is his 1,000 acre ranch near Durango, Colorado.

"It's not a working ranch," L'Amour explains. "It's actually a research center. We live in a cabin that was built in 1881, which my wife has fixed up. Seven men were killed in that cabin, four of them by Utes. We found bullets embedded in the walls."

With his total output of books standing just five shy of the century mark, "Disney Beat" asked L'Amour if his output would reach 100 novels.

"Oh goodness, yes, I hope so," he said. "I currently have 34 stories in my head. I'm not saying that I'm writing all of them. Often a book begins as an idea, and it stays there until it begins to boil. I spent 30 years collecting material and thinking about my last novel, 'The Last of the Breed.'"

There's even a prospective note for fans of L'Amour's Westerns, especially "Down the Long Hills": "I've been thinking of writing a sequel to 'Down the Long Hills,'" he admits. "It's just an idea, but it's there in my mind."

L'Amour's philosophy of writing helps explain the novelist's international popularity (his work has been translated into over a dozen languages): "Writing," he points out, "is an act of sharing."

Burt Kennedy directed "Down the Long Hills," and after he finished the

the role of Davy Crockett—Disney's "King of the Wild Frontier"—is none other than Brian Keith, who holds the distinction of being one of the studio's most durable stars.

The late Robert Stevenson, who directed the Disney classic musical "Mary Poppins," was one of the most successful directors in the history of Hollywood. In fact, he was the most successful director (in terms of the monies his films earned at the box office) until the films of George Lucas, Steven Spielberg, and Francis Ford Coppola shattered previous box office records in the 1970s. Among Stevenson's credits are such masterpieces as "Jane Eyre" and, for Disney, "Old Yeller" and "The Love Bug" among others.

Julie Andrews made her screen debut with "Mary Poppins" (and collected an Oscar as "Best Actress" for her role). This fall moviegoers had the chance to see the versatile singer-actress in an unusual role. She starred with Jack Lemmon in "That's Life," a tragicomedy directed by her husband, Blake Edwards. In November she's in "Duet for One," from Cannon Films.

Dick Van Dyke (Bert in "Mary Poppins") returned to television this season as a guest star in the new NBC series "Matlock." The series stars Andy Griffith, who made his screen debut in "A Face in the Crowd" (check listings for times). Van Dyke played a murderous judge who attempted to have a young man unfairly convicted. About his absence from films and television, Van Dyke, a passionate sailor, observed that he's been content to spend his time in California's Newport Beach, where he docks his sloop. "I vegetate well," he explains.

If you look closely at "Pirates of Tortuga," which premieres on November 16 at 7:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time), you'll notice Rafer Johnson, who lit the torch inaugurating the 1984 Olympics.

Jack Elam (left) plays a mountain man in "Down the Long Hills," and Andy Griffith is a hobo in "A Face in the Crowd."

movie, he moved on to another Western, a mini-series for NBC entitled "The Alamo: Thirteen Days of Glory." It's an historical retelling of the valiant battle and siege of the Alamo during Texas' War of Independence from Mexico. And playing

SHIRLEY TEMPLE THEATRE

I ordered The Disney Channel for my son and ended up loving it myself. I also love the new "Disney Channel Magazine." It is easy to read and use. I am writing to ask about an announcement I read concerning a "Shirley Temple Theatre." Will you be putting on all of the Shirley Temple pictures, or only those that have been colorized? Please put all of her pictures on The Disney Channel.

Vicky Ver Steeg
Oskaloosa, IA

"Shirley Temple Theatre" premieres on The Disney Channel this winter. The Disney Channel will present all of the 18 Temple films in the Twentieth Century Fox library, and all of them will be in color, including 16 movies that have been especially colorized for The Channel. You can "Sneak a Peek" at "Shirley Temple Theatre" with a special presentation of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," November 22 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time). Coming soon, a different Shirley Temple film will premiere every two weeks.

KIDS INCORPORATED

I read in The Disney Channel Magazine that "Kids Incorporated" is going to be shown on The Disney Channel. I love the show. When is it going to be shown on The Disney Channel? And I was wondering if you were going to show the episodes that have already been filmed, or will these be new shows?

KIRK DOUGLAS IS STILL HAVING FUN

When making a movie becomes just hard work and isn't fun, I'll stop doing it," says 70-year-old Kirk Douglas. "But it always has been exciting and fun. You put in a lot of hard work and long hours but every day on a film is a new adventure. Each day the adrenalin gets going and you're charged up."

"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" (check listings for dates), stars Kirk Douglas in one of the most exuberant roles of his career. The adrenalin had to have been running then, and he was surely having fun.

And Douglas is still having fun. In his most recent movie, "Tough Guys," which opened in theaters across the country on October 3, he and Burt Lancaster reunited for their first action-comedy movie.

Kirk Douglas has fun, but he also cares about others. On behalf of the U.S. State Department he has traveled all over the world, bringing people a better understanding of the United States. ♡

MEREDITH SALENGER'S STAR IS RISING

The best thing about acting is that you get to travel everywhere," says 16-year-old Meredith Salenger. Since starring last year in "The Journey of Natty Gann," which will have its world television premiere on The Disney Channel later in December, Meredith has traveled all over the world. "It's the best," she says, "I'll get a taste of everything before I'm 20."

A publicity tour took Meredith across the United States and to London, Paris and Berlin. Then last spring she went to Australia to film a TV miniseries in which she plays Linda Evans' daughter. And now she's in Chicago making a movie, "Jimmy Rearden."

"It's a teen movie, set in the Sixties, and it's cute," Meredith says. "I play the lead's girlfriend. The movie's important to me because it's a chance to show that I'm growing up. I'm not still the child that I was in 'Natty Gann.'"

She is growing up, but "not too fast," she adds. "I wouldn't be as mature if I hadn't had this experience, but you can't give up your life as a kid and not go to school or to college. That's one of the biggest mistakes kids can make." ♡

DR. SEUSS'S LAND OF "LOGICAL INSANITY"

Kids all over the world know the whimsical, nonsensical storybook characters of Dr. Seuss: The Cat in the Hat, The Grinch, and others.

Now Dr. Seuss is coming to The Disney Channel. "Halloween is Grinch Night" premieres October 31 as part of our Halloween Fantasy Film Festival. It's the first of seven colorful Dr. Seuss specials to be shown in months ahead.

But who is Dr. Seuss, really?

In private life he's Theodor Seuss Geisel, an energetic 82-year-old author who lives in La Jolla, California, with his wife, Audrey. The Geisels live way up on a hilltop. There, he still works all day creating the land of Dr. Seuss, which is ruled by "logical insanity," as he calls it.

It's never too late to try something new, either. Earlier this year Dr. Seuss published his first book for adults, "You're Only Old Once!: A Book for Obsolete Children," an immediate bestseller.

Theodor Seuss Geisel has won many awards, but he recently spoke about his greatest satisfaction: "I think I had something to do with kicking Dick and Jane out of the school system. I think I proved to a number of million kids that reading is not a disagreeable task." ♡
